July 27th 2008: THE SEVENTEENTH SUNDAY OF THE YEAR

THE PEARL OF GREAT PRICE

The Provost writes:

It is sometimes a salutary exercise to sit down and think "If my house was on fire, what would I want to save first?" Would it be that particular book or picture, would it be a photograph of a loved one, or something valuable in more earthly terms? It is hard to say. But to think like that does help us to get a true perspective on life, on the things that really matter to us and the things that ultimately are peripheral

This situation can apply in other areas of life too. What selfish attitudes do I need to surrender in order to preserve my marriage or my religious vocation? When people look at me do they see someone pleasant to be with, more concerned for the needs of the other person, or do they see a monster of egotism, a bully and a selfish character? We all know that there are aspects of our lives and behaviour that are not yet under the gentle sway of Christ, and that they must be so brought if we are ever going to get anywhere.

If getting a proper perspective on what really matters is essential when it comes to our possessions or our desires and motivations, how much more so is it in the realm of faith. The greatest gift we have is surely that of our faith; there is nothing more important than that. It is the pearl of great price this weekend's Gospel tells us about. All else is worth sacrificing in order to preserve and foster that priceless gift. With the gift of faith all else is possible and we can laugh at adversity and smile at anxiety. Without it, how dreary our existence, how bleak our world, how empty our lives ultimately are. We might need to ask ourselves: "What must I do to increase my faith?" Perhaps we need to spend more time in prayer, or take up reading the Bible or regular spiritual reading, or doing some apostolic work in the parish. We might also have to ask: "What must I avoid in order to preserve my faith?" Some bad habit, bad friendship, some weakness that prevents me loving Christ as I should – we can each supply our own list, I am sure.

I hope some of you were able to follow the Pope's visit to Australia last week for World Youth Day. The addresses he gave to young Catholics about the gift of faith, the working of the Holy Spirit in our lives and the supreme joy of knowing and loving Christ were truly inspirational and repay prayerful study. The Pope reminded our youth that earthly success is not the thing that really matters, that we must do all we can to avoid getting sucked into the "spiritual desert" which has engulfed so much of modern society, and that a generous, loving response to Christ is the true way of finding that fulfillment for which the heart – and especially the young heart – yearns. Those Papal homilies and addresses were some of the most beautiful of this pontificate, and we should be truly grateful that God has given us such a marvelous guide in living out our faith as we find in Pope Benedict XVI. Here is one brief extract: "Dear friends, life is not governed by chance; it is not random. Your very existence has been willed by God, blessed and given a purpose. Life is not just a succession of events and experiences, helpful though many of them are. It is a search for the true, the good and the beautiful. It is to this end we make our choices; it is for this that we exercise our freedom; it is in this – in truth, in goodness and in beauty – that we find our happiness and our joy. Do not be fooled by those who see you as just another consumer in a market of undifferentiated possibilities, where choice itself becomes the good, novelty usurps beauty, and subjective experience displaces truth. Christ offers more! Indeed He offers everything! Only He who is the Truth can be the Way and hence also the Life."

His gentle instruction to Martha that her sister had taken the better part in listening to Him rather than to help her, is a reminder to us all about being worried and distracted by the world and of our failure or forgetfulness in not spending time with Him. Perhaps you might be able to give Our Lord a little more of your time. Why not consider, for example, coming to Exposition on Saturday morning?

His "Spiritual Exercises", an account of his experiences at the time of his conversion, has helped many in their own search for God's Will

Friday August 1st: St Alphonsus Mary de Liguori, Bishop & Doctor of the Church. Memoria. (White)

St Alphonsus (1696-1787) As a young man he was a Brother of the Little Oratory in Naples. Highly intelligent, he became a barrister, but realised his true vocation, and was ordained in 1726. A renowned preacher and moral theologian, he founded the Redemptorists. He was also a noted confessor and encouraged the practice of confession saying that priests "should be a lion in the pulpit and a lamb in the confessional". He was a popular and prolific author. He became a bishop, but was forced to resign due to ill-health and in his last years, he suffered intensely, but still continued with voluntary mortifications.
